Please note:

- Not all questions have the same total point value. Please allot your efforts accordingly.
- Point form answers are acceptable.
- Answers will be marked on how well they exhibit an understanding of the material. Answers that contain all the relevant items but are not presented in a clear manner will not receive full marks.
1. (20 points total) Discuss what is known about attentional bias in eating disorders. In your answer, address how Mahamedi and Heatherton (1993), one of the assigned readings, impacts on this topic.

2. (6 points total) How might binging be rewarding for bulimic individuals?
3. (6 points total) In eating disorders, cognition can be impacted by starvation. What are the possible effects?

4. (20 points total) What is a balanced placebo design? What are its advantages as compared to other designs? Describe the approach and findings of an article addressing alcohol that involved this design. What were the conclusions?
5. (10 points total) What impact does perceived consumption of caffeine have on a motor task? Describe a study that examined this issue. Be sure to provide the methodology, results, and conclusions.

6. (10 points total) Discuss the relationship between chronic pain and depression.
7. (18 points) How does self-efficacy impact pain? Describe a study that looks at this issue.

8. (6 points total) At the start of the 20th century, Emil Kraepelin first gathered various psychotic disorders under one category, dementia praecox. What was his account of this disorder?
9. (24 points) Frith argued that a defect in the mechanism that controls conscious awareness of stimuli could account for many of the positive symptoms of schizophrenia. What specifically did he propose? Describe a study that addresses this hypothesis. What was done? How does it examine the issue? What was found? What conclusion was drawn?
10. (22 points total) How does response modulation account for psychopathy? How is this concept related to reflectivity? Describe two connected studies by Newman and colleagues that address response modulation and reflectivity.
12. (10 points total) Patrick (1993, 1994) examined startle reflex in psychopathy. Why was this phenomenon examined in this disorder? What did Patrick do? What was found? What conclusions were drawn?

HAVE A GREAT SUMMER!